++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Blustery showers, becoming more frequent.

This Evening and Tonight:
Further showers, heavy at times, to come through the evening and overnight, these becoming more frequent with time particularly across the north of the area. Remaining windy throughout the night. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Monday:
A bright and blustery day with sunny spells, but also plenty of showers, some of which will be heavy and perhaps thundery. Winds will ease down later in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Becoming drier through the period, with more in the way of sunshine and fewer showers. Northerly winds will make it feel cold, with overnight frosts and fog becoming more likely.
